Courses

ENIN 200 Foundations of Entrepreneurship, ONLINE through Arts and Science Online, multiple positions available, 90 hours each (Instructor: Gregory Bavington)

This course will cover frameworks used to evaluate how disruptive and incremental innovations bring about changes in the market, and in society, by prompting new business models, technologies, and paradigms. Through online lectures and entrepreneurial exercises that focus on specific real-world opportunities, you will learn about the foundational concepts required to understand the dynamics of today's multi-sided markets and how to tap into, and execute, the innovative and entrepreneurial opportunities they make possible.

Responsibilities include: leading discussions, grading exams and assignments, consulting with students, assisting with curriculum and course material development, conferring with the non-bargaining unit supervisor/delegate

Additional Requirements for Online Courses: Course taught online may require some training and preparation before the start of the course. Candidates must be prepared to work outside the regular 9-5 work week and have access to the internet and a computer that meets minimum requirements. Experience with learning management systems (eg onQ) and videoconferencing software (e.g. Zoom or Adobe Connect) would be an asset.

ENIN 301 Creative Entrepreneurship, ONLINE through Arts and Science Online, multiple positions available, 67 hours each (Instructor: Rizma Butt)

This course offers a primer on personal and organizational creativity, and is designed to support learners to develop entrepreneurial mindsets. Learners will study emerging theories of creative thinking, and develop a deep understanding of, and engagement with, discourses and methods of innovation in the creative industries.

Responsibilities include: leading discussions, grading exams and assignments, consulting with students
